Hub of activities/ Creating Awareness

Tamana campus has always been in the center of activities of all kinds: high profile visits, festivals, cultural events, fashion shows etc. Tamana's students take part in these events with full enthusiasm. Sometimes they are participants to the events and sometimes they are mere spectators. But in both the cases, they love to be a part them. Memories of many such events will never fade away from our minds. These are moments that show that our kids don't live on a segregated island; they are all part of the wonderful phenomenon called society. And they also show that people are not indifferent to the special kids. They do have love to sprinkle into the lives of those who are deprived of it.

TAMANA WINTER CARNIVAL-

Wednesday, New Delhi, December 2nd: The carnival is an event held annually. Since the last 4 years the event is being held at the British High Commissioner's residence to mobilize the international community to support the cause of the disabled. Tamana tries its best to provide experiences to its students, which they otherwise lack in their daily life. Our students get limited opportunities for enjoyment, recreation and interaction with the wider community because of the societal stigma. These children get limited exposure to the outside world. Every year Tamana the Winter Carnival is a fun day for our students and guests.

The Chief Guests at the 2009 carnival were Lady Stagg and Mrs. Sonia Lovely (wife of Mr. Arvinder Singh Lovely, Minister for Education, Govt. of Delhi). People from the local community, international community and corporate houses are invited to spend a day with our students. Our students treasure such interaction with wider society. We also invite the parents of the students so that they can share happy moments with their special child.

Tamana students and students of Tamana kindergarten performed for the honored guests and the citizens of Delhi who had come in thousands to attend the carnival. The carnival had live music, kids amusement area, food stalls, fashion show, stalls of local craftsmen, stall of private exhibitors. Products made by Tamana students were also displayed and sold-like candles, carry bags, towels, paintings, jewelry, bags and bakery products.

Tamana hosted the 2005's carnival at the Sudan Embassy and 2004 carnival at the Tanzanian Ambassador's Residence

CONCERT BY PRAGUN SHARMA

SPORTS DAY

New Delhi, March 15th:Tamana organized a sports day which saw mass participation of 300 students of Tamana. This was the first time that a sports day had been planned on such a scale where all the students were involved irrespective of the severity of disability. Our aim was to involve each student in at least one activity. The activities were planned taking into account the severity, the age and physical dexterity of the students.

The students practiced for 1 month in the respective branches of Tamana. A week before the event they practiced continuously for 5 days at the venue (hockey grounds of DPS, R K Puram). The students exhibited immense enthusiasm in rehearsing for the event. It was a new experience for them. They did not mind the repeated practicing and were very cooperative. The autistic adjusted to the venue, which was a new surrounding for them without any hiccups. The different sports selected were- drills like hoopla, yoga drill , athletic events like cycling, shot put throw, racing(sack race, obstacle race, relay race) long and short jump.

The chief guest at the function was the Union Minister for Sports, Mr. Mani Shankar Aiyer and Mrs. Aiyer. The sport day started with a ceremonial torch run by Jyotsna Kalra, winner of Silver medal at Special Olympics at Beijing in 2007. She handed the torch to the honorable minister who declared the games open. The winners of the athletic event were awarded gold, silver and bronze medals by the Honorable minister.

The parents who attended the function in full force were delighted to see their child participating in the event and discovering his / her skills and hidden talent. It was an emotional moment for the parents to see their child win medals and participate in a co curricular activity. The parents were appreciative of the tremendous hard work, effort and fine tuning that had gone in to make 300 special students participate in an event at the same time. At the end of the day it was a very gratifying and moving experience for all of us at Tamana and we realized that we had accomplished a major feat.

INAUGURATION OF THE FIRST INDO U.S. CONFERENCE “UNRAVELING AUTISM: CAUSES, DIAGNOSTICS AND INTERVENTION”

Wednesday, New Delhi, 13th September 2006: The Indo U.S. Conference “Unraveling Autism: Causes, Diagnostics and Intervention” and workshop “HANDLE” was organized by Tamana in partnership with Indo U.S. Science and Technology Forum. It had a very auspicious beginning as it was inaugurated by the President of India, Dr. A.P.J Abdul Kalam..

The President of India in his inaugural address exhibited his in-depth understanding of autism. The President said that research must identify if autism was both genetic and environmental. “There are no established biological markers. There are 20 autism-related genes that have been discovered for far. What is inherited and how broad the inheritable genotype is, still remains unclear,” he said.

President Kalam highlighted the need to treat autistic child equally in our society. He also elaborated on the need to have fruitful research and development activities to provide an integrated solution to the problem of these children. The president stressed on the convergence of fields like Information and Communication Technology, Medicine, Electronics, Biotechnology and Nano-technology to find solutions to the problems. Dr. A.P.J Abdul Kalam suggested possible research areas in autism, including use of stem cells, and whether the activities of the damaged area of the brain can be transferred to other areas with the use of a micro-chip. “My own perception is that the problem should be less in joint families than in nuclear families. But that needs to be scientifically looked into,” he added.

Calling upon researchers to work with a mission of making humanity autism free, the President said that it was necessary to network research experience across the world so that a common knowledge base was developed and the data could be used through on line web services. He urged the experts and the participants in the conference to come out with a comprehensive report that would act as a guide for those working for the education of special children and also to ensure inclusive education.

Mrs. Meira Kumar, Union Minister for Ministry for Social Justice and Empowerment and Mrs. Sheila Dikshit, Chief Minister of Delhi also graced the occasion and pledged their support for development activities of the autistic. Meira Kumar, Union Minister Of Social Justice And Empowerment said that her ministry has constituted an expert committee to devise ways for better and faster diagnosis of autism. The report would be submitted in two months. That would ensure early detection and intervention. She informed that the ministry was also in the process of framing a National Policy for Persons with Disabilities.

Delhi Chief Minister Sheila Dikshit promised all help from her government in the field of autism. Dr. Shayama Chona, founder of Tamana, talked of her own experience with her daughter to drive home the point that early intervention and behaviour therapy can ensure “normal” lives for special needs individuals. Dr. Geraldine Dawson, Director of the University of Washington Autism Centre and co-chair for the conference, talked about the needs to explore autism as a multidimensional disorder with genetic and environmental factors contributing to it. She hoped that this conference would make available information that would offer new hope and expanded perspectives that would ultimately enhance the lives of children with autism and their families. She reiterated that she and her colleagues from the U.S shared a desire –an aspiration, as the word Tamana implies-to more fully understand autism and to help individuals with autism reach their fullest potential.

Dr. Arabinda Mitra, Executive Director, Indo U.S Science and Technology Forum thanked all the distinguished guests for supporting the cause. He informed that in line with the mandate of the Forum to promote catalyze and seed bilateral collaboration between India and U.S in science, technology, engineering and biomedical research through substantive interaction amongst government, media and academia, through this bilateral conference, he hoped to bring some much-needed attention to the problem of autism in India. Indian and U.S. scientists would get a platform to exchange their personal experience in improving training and treatment methodologies for the autistic.

Tamana students entertained the distinguished guests with dances choreographed by Victory Arts foundation. Tamana Chona also showed her dancing talent. The show was compered by Devesh, a student of Tamana Autism centre.

BALLET BY SHOVANA NARAYAN

New Delhi, 18th February 2006: Ms Shovana Narayan, a well-acclaimed classical dancer and choreographer graciously came forward to perform her famous ballet “Moonlight Impressionism” for Tamana students and parents. "Moonlight Impressionism" is one of those unique experiments of Shovana Narayan, which sought to bring together the Western and Indian classical music through an exquisite love story, painted in the tradition of Kathak. The story was so bewitchingly depicted by Shovana ji and her pupils to the accompaniment of music that it mesmerized the audience. The students of Tamana and Tamana Chona also put up separate performances prior to the ballet which touched the heart of every one present. The Chief Guest was Mr. C.P. Jain, Chairman NTPC.

CIRCLE OF LIFE- TAMANA PAYAL JAIN FASHION SHOW

New Delhi, March 4, 2005: The Spring Summer Collection of Fashion Designer Payal Jain, was presented at the Tamana Payal Jain Fashion Show at the Hyatt Regency. The charity event was dedicated to mobilize funds for building a sheltered workshop at Tamana or moving the disabled to complete economic rehabilitation.

The show unfolded with the Tamana children performing a dance sequence choreographed by Giles Chuyen. The fashion show had Tamana students sharing the ramp with the top models of India, incorporated the motto of the International disability movement: Nothing About Us Without Us. Taking to the ramp, clad in Payal Jain ensembles were some of leading names from the Indian modeling world-Anupama Verma, Jesse Randhawa, Carol Gracias, Diandra Soares, Nayanika Charrerjee, Sapna Kumar, Monikangkana. The last ramp sequence found the Tamana children matching steps with these models draped in the enchanting silhouettes from Payal's Collection. The culmination of the show was a harmonious rendition of "We are the World" by the little angels on stage directed by George Pulenkala.

The fashion show carried forward the year 2004 International Disability Day's theme, that is, full and equal participation by persons with disabilities in social life and development. In the present scenario, people with disability did not want to be viewed as “objects” of welfare policies. Persons with disability had started to enjoy the full spectrum of civil, political, social, cultural and economic rights. People with disability had the right to make their own choices and participate in all areas of like. They had the right to imbibe the latest fashion. The purpose of Fashion was to make everyone look beautiful, irrespective of race, class, creed, colour, ability and disability....
